This book features the story of a real stray dog named Tonton. He roams around the streets of Rio until he finds his first owner, Antonio, who is a homeless person. They both create a solid spiritual bond and have to face neglect and rejection from ordinary people. Tonton makes friendship with other homeless pets and their owners. They have to deal with exposure, aggression, abuse, contempt, poverty, famine, and disease.

Unfortunately, as the years go by, he comes face to face with the loss of stray pets and homeless people he befriended – Antonio included. Tonton then becomes a real abandoned stray pooch wandering the city's streets. His health declines and he becomes a matted, mangy, emaciated dog infested with ticks and lice. In the meantime, he witnesses how other animals of economic interest to humans, like Branquinha, a female horse, are considered mere beasts of burden and learns about the cruelty and brutality animals like her can be treated with.

Believing his time has come, Tonton has an extraordinary near-death experience (NDE) and acquires a glimpse of animals and humans' afterlife. This experience gives him renewed strength, and he decides to leave Rio and go to the countryside. There, Tonton finds the gruesome fate of farm animals and the neglect with which dogs of the breed are also treated in grand houses. It is there, among the mountains, that he finds the love of his life - Kika. She teaches him how to invigorate his body and spirit through contact with nature, what, in her opinion, is the real purpose of life of any sentient being, and why pets lead such short life spans as compared to humans. Tragically, fate has Tonton learn the most challenging life experience – losing someone you call your twin soul. It is beyond his comprehension why so many animals and humans suffer in the hands of other seemingly insensible people.

The events in his life led him to profound spiritual insights that powerfully changed his vision of humanity, animals, and the world around him. Thus, from the fragments of his life, he develops a keen sense of faith and devotion, gratitude and hope, courage and solidarity. With his final owner, he discovers happiness and joyfulness again and that not a single sentient being is excluded out of the pale of creation. All creatures are unconditionally loved. Heaven for humans and animals, after all, does exist...
