A DIFFERENT SORT OF DOG BOOK! This book is a non-fiction travelogue, which reads like a novel written straight from the heart detailing the first 4 trips of 2 beloved shelter dogs.

Find out what happened way up in the Northeast Kingdom which made it hard to get home! What was the Bread and Puppet? Where did the girls witness a gunfight? Who did B.B. take an instant dislike to and why out in San Francisco? What was possibly stalking Kel and Carolyn up on Doe Mountain? How did Carolyn nearly burn down the house? What did the girls get to ride in and on? Who did they meet in Oakland, California?

All of the answers to these questions are found throughout this first book in the series.

These two dogs were mixed breeds like 75% of the dogs found at animal shelters. The focus is primarily on these spayed females — their personalities, quirks, and habits. As the reader gets to know them, it's easy to become fond and relate to them as you do your own dogs. Getting to know their "parents" secondarily is a fringe benefit. The reader will be immersed in and experience all their journeys feeling like they're in the car, in the many places they stay, in the restaurants, sightseeing with them, the surprises and everything that happens to the four of them.

This book has a happy ending — no dog dies. If you shed tears, they will be of joy or laughter. It is one big, fun, humorous, love fest between canines and humans as they road trip together where one never knows what will be around the next curve in the highway!
