The Vanishing Heiress

Gunny Mac was approached by a distraught mother desperate to find her missing daughter, Mei Ling. Mei Ling, a young heiress from a prominent family, mysteriously vanished one night after attending a traditional Chinese ceremony. The police investigation hit a dead end, leaving her mother with no other choice but to turn to Gunny Mac for help.

As Gunny delves deeper into the case, he uncovers a world of deceit, betrayal, and ancient rituals. From the opium dens to the back alleys, he follows the faintest whispers of information, determined to bring Mei Ling back home safely.

The Shadow Syndicate

During his investigation, Gunny discovers the existence of a powerful syndicate that has been operating in the shadows of Chinatown for decades. This underground organization, known as the Five Dragons, controls the criminal activities in the area – from illegal gambling to human trafficking.

Driven by a sense of justice, Gunny infiltrates the syndicate, posing as a slick gambler to gain their trust. As he gains insider knowledge about their operations, he realizes the full extent of Mei Ling's predicament and the danger she is in.

A Race Against Time

With every passing day, Gunny's race against time becomes more intense. The labyrinthine streets of Chinatown conceal dangers at every turn, and the syndicate's grip on the community grows tighter. As Gunny gets closer to Mei Ling, he becomes entangled in a dangerous game where one wrong move could cost him his life.

With his trusted sidekick, Lily Wong, a street-smart informant with a colorful past, Gunny gathers crucial evidence and allies. Their partnership becomes the key to untangling the intricate web surrounding Mei Ling's disappearance.

The Final Confrontation

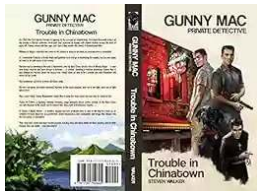

Gunny Mac's relentless pursuit eventually leads him to the heart of the syndicate's lair. In a suspenseful climax, Gunny and Lily Wong must face off against the Five Dragons and their merciless leader, Chang Li. The fate of Mei Ling hangs in the balance as Gunny fights to bring down the criminal empire and expose their dark secrets.

It is 1942, four badly wounded medically discharged veterans fight one last battle for their friends and country in the steamy streets of Chinatown, Hawaii!

President Roosevelt orders all the money in Hawaii collected, destroyed, and replaced by money with Hawaii written across the back of each bill. Funny money that the Japs can't use if they invade the Hawaiian Islands, if Guadalcanal falls.

Millions of dollars collected and some of the money is about to be taken by anybody who is somebody.

LT. Commander Kincaid, a drunk, thief, and gambler is in charge of destroying the money, has his own plans on what to do with some of the money.

But one man is standing in his way. A bayoneted, shot up Navy Cross winner, hero of Bloody Ridge...a man who hates what he is forced to become...a civilian. Awaiting a medical discharge, Gunny Mac is lost without his Marine Corps. He buys a two- dollar book on how to be a private eye...and Chinatown will never be the same.

But sometimes you have to throw the book away...

But he's not alone. His fellow wounded Marines, at the naval hospital, now out of the fight, have lots of fight left in them.

Mac's best friend, Gunny Wojohowitz, needs Mac to help him track down the one man he needs to kill...

Padre McCaffery, a fighting, whiskey-drinking, cigar smoking Jesuit priest, winner of the Navy Cross recruits Marines in the psych unit to ensure Mac stays safe with hilarious results...

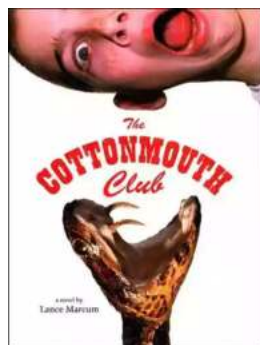

LT. Burke a Naval officer...a wealthy, spoiled Harvard graduate who is sent to the Marines as an Artillery Forward Observer as punishment, seeks forgiveness and redemption and drags Mac deeper into the corruption of Chinatown.

They shed their blood and their human psyche, but they face one more battle for their country, and for their friends. One last battle...one last victory!
