When Amanda and Eric adopted Neuro Dan, a special needs kitten with a terminal neurological disease, they had no idea just how special his needs were going to be. They also didn't realize what a special soul he was and what a catalyst he would be in their own lives. Dan's daily care required much time and patience but the love and appreciation he showed in return were humbling. When veterinary specialists broke the news that he would be lucky to live to see his second birthday, his story quickly spread across social media. Before long he was adored by tens of thousands of fans across the globe. Now a celebrity in his own right, Dan had thousands praying for him daily. The tiny ginger kitten was going to be in for the fight of his life. With the world on his side, he wouldn't be alone.

But Dan's story has already been written, told through his eyes and his point of view. This book is a supplement to the first book that started it all and tells that story from a different perspective. Finally, Amanda and Eric share what that journey was like for them, from their point of view. This is the story of how it all began, what came before, how they adapted their own lives to care for Neuro Dan. It also delves into their own personal thoughts and insights. They share their own hopes, fears, ups and downs, and what it was truly like for them to live, not just with Neuro Dan, but to manage his social media presence and celebrity status as well.

You read the story of Neuro Dan. Now join Dan's mum and dad, Amanda and Eric Fish, on the emotionally gripping rollercoaster ride that was their life with a special needs kitten who had not only a severe physical disability but a terminal illness as well.
