

Rethinking The Nonhuman: Exploring New Dimensions in Asian Religion and Philosophy

When it comes to exploring the intricate relationship between humans and the nonhuman world, Rethinking The Nonhuman: Routledge Studies In Asian Religion And Philosophy 12 presents a thought-provoking collection of essays that go beyond conventional boundaries. With its wide-ranging perspectives and insightful analysis, this book invites readers to embark on a journey of reimagining our connection to the nonhuman in Asian religious and philosophical traditions.

Unlocking New Dimensions

The significance of the nonhuman world cannot be underestimated. From the teachings of indigenous communities to the wisdom of ancient traditions, there is a deep appreciation for the interconnectedness of all living beings. This book delves into this profound wisdom and sheds light on various Asian religions and philosophies, providing a fresh lens through which to view the nonhuman.

The authors in this collection challenge the boundaries of traditional scholarship by examining not only human experiences but also the experiences of animals, plants, and even inanimate objects. This expansion of focus allows for a more holistic understanding of the nonhuman in Asian cultures, offering a rich tapestry of perspectives to the readers.

Exploring Asian Perspectives

Rethinking The Nonhuman takes readers on a captivating journey through diverse Asian religious and philosophical traditions. From the teachings of Buddhism to the various sects of Hinduism, from Taoist beliefs to the animistic practices of indigenous communities, this book covers a broad spectrum of ideas.

The essays delve into the belief systems that recognize the inherent value and agency within elements of the natural world, challenging anthropocentric views. By examining texts, rituals, and practices, the authors present a nuanced understanding of how Asian cultures have integrated the nonhuman into their worldviews.

Intertwining Religion and Philosophy

One of the unique aspects of this collection is its exploration of the interplay between religion and philosophy. While these fields are often studied separately, Rethinking The Nonhuman brings them together to offer a more comprehensive understanding of Asian perspectives on the nonhuman.

Through the lenses of Buddhism, Confucianism, and other philosophical traditions, the authors investigate how these belief systems shape attitudes towards nonhuman entities. The book sheds light on the ethical considerations, environmental consciousness, and spiritual connections that arise from these religious and philosophical frameworks.

Rethinking Relationships and Responsibilities

The collection also prompts readers to reflect on their own relationship with the nonhuman world. By presenting multiple perspectives, it challenges normative ways of thinking and invites a reevaluation of our responsibilities towards the environment and other living beings.

Readers are inspired to reconsider their place in the world and consider how their actions may impact the delicate balance of nature. Through this introspection, the book empowers individuals to cultivate a deeper sense of empathy, respect, and interconnectedness with the nonhuman aspects of our world.

Rethinking The Nonhuman: Routledge Studies In Asian Religion And Philosophy 12 goes beyond the conventional boundaries of scholarship to offer readers an immersive experience in exploring new dimensions of the nonhuman in Asian cultures. With its wide-ranging perspectives, engaging analysis, and thought-provoking insights, this collection challenges readers to reconsider their own relationship with the nonhuman world and forge a path towards a more harmonious coexistence.

To date, philosophical discussions of animal ethics and Critical Animal Studies have been dominated by Western perspectives and Western thinkers. This book makes a novel contribution to animal ethics in showing the range and richness of ideas offered to these fields by diverse Asian traditions.

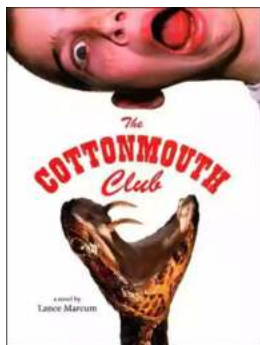

Asian Perspectives on Animal Ethics is the first of its kind to include the intersection of Asian and European traditions with respect to human and nonhuman relations. Presenting a series of studies focusing on specific Asian traditions, as well as studies that put those traditions in dialogue with Western thinkers, this book looks at Asian philosophical doctrines concerning compassion and nonviolence as these apply to nonhuman animals, as well as the moral rights and status of nonhuman animals in Asian traditions. Using Asian perspectives to explore ontological, ethical and political questions, contributors analyze humanism and post-humanism in Asian and comparative traditions and offer insight into the special ethical relations between humans and other particular species of animals.

This book will be of interest to students and scholars of Asian religion and philosophy, as well as to those interested in animal ethics and Critical Animal Studies.
