Embracing Agility in Teaching

Gone are the days of rigid lesson plans and inflexible teaching styles. Teaching From The Emerging Now Emerald Points encourages educators to adapt and respond to the ever-changing educational landscape. By embracing agility, teachers can adjust their teaching strategies to better meet the needs of diverse learners.

For example, instead of sticking to a predefined curriculum, teachers can allow flexibility in content delivery to accommodate individual interests and learning styles. This may involve incorporating multimedia elements, interactive activities, and real-world applications to enhance student engagement and understanding.

Adaptability as a Key Skill

In a rapidly evolving world, adaptability has become an essential skill. Teaching From The Emerging Now Emerald Points recognizes the importance of cultivating adaptability in both educators and students.

Teachers can foster adaptability by encouraging students to think critically, solve problems creatively, and navigate through uncertain situations. By providing opportunities for flexible thinking and embracing unexpected outcomes, educators empower students to become lifelong learners who can thrive in any environment.

Incorporating Innovation in the Classroom

Innovation is the driving force behind progress and growth. Teaching From The Emerging Now Emerald Points invites educators to infuse their classrooms with innovative practices that prepare students for the realities of a rapidly changing world.

One way to nurture innovation is by incorporating project-based learning, where students take an active role in exploring complex problems and finding creative solutions. This approach fosters critical thinking, collaboration, and resourcefulness, fundamental skills necessary for success in the modern workforce.

Bringing It All Together

Teaching From The Emerging Now Emerald Points empowers educators to be agents of change who propel education towards a more inclusive, relevant, and engaging future. By embracing agility, adaptability, and innovation, teachers can unlock the full potential of their students, preparing them to thrive in an uncertain and ever-changing world.

So, are you ready to embark on a transformative journey as an educator? Join the movement and embrace Teaching From The Emerging Now Emerald Points!

Microaggressions, complex identities, polarized belief systems, pandemic interruptions-- these are just a few of the things the modern classroom holds. What if we could work with what emerges in the moment instead of seeing it as an unplanned disruption? Teaching from the Emerging Now explores how we combine our intention with what naturally emerges to create inclusive, dynamic classrooms amid constant change.

The Intentional Emergence model combines Case-in-Point and Adaptive Leadership with compassion and culturally responsive pedagogy to develop a new teaching and learning style. This approach takes the fear out of being surprised, provides concrete ways to both support and challenge students, and reimagines the classroom as a living leadership laboratory. Beyond bridging theory to practice, by rethinking the classroom from a place to impart knowledge to a shared space of co-creation, faculty, teachers, and trainers are better able to meet the increasingly diverse needs of learners.
